ST. JOHN'S STORY.

A Long Reply to the Charges of Clarkson.

HE DECLARES HE IS INNOCENT

Clarkson Replies to St John's Statement and Challenges the Latter to Sue him for Libel—Some one has Lied

ST PAUL, Jan 17—Representatives of the press called on ex-Governor St. John this evening, at his room at the National hotel, and obtained from him a verbatim copy of the statement he promised to give the public regarding the charges contained against him in letters and interviews recently published by Mr Clarkson and Mr Legate This copy was compared, word by word, with the statement written by St John and bears, like the original, his signature Following is the statement

NATIONAL HOTEL,
MINNEAPOLIS, Minn, Jan 17

J S Clarkson of the Des Moines Register, and member of the national committee of the republican party, after a great deal of goading and conference with his friend, J B McCullough, of the Globe-Democrat, St. Louis, at last gives to the public what he calls evidence to prove that I proposed to sell out to the republicans, and thus betray the prohibition party

AN EXTRACT FROM CLARKSON'S LETTER.

In Mr Clarkson's letter published in the Chicago Tribune of the 9th inst., he says

To my knowledge he did make overtures, through a friend from his own state, by which he offered, if paid $25,000 in cash, to withdraw as a candidate altogether, or to stay in the field and 'feather his speeches' (as it was put in the Kansas phrase) to help the republicans He was asked, in order to prove the sincerity of his offer, to withdraw from Ohio the last week before the October election in that state. He did this under the plea, which he said he would give, of getting a sore throat, and with the friends I have mentioned, went first to Pittsburg, next to Philadelphia and finally to New York, where he hoped to meet some one on the part of the republican national committee who would be ready to make the deal and pay the cash

ST JOHN'S MOVEMENTS.

My appointments for the campaign were made by the national committee of the prohibition party, at Chicago, September 18 It was arranged for me to speak in Ohio as follows At Springfield October 3, Delaware October 4, Akron October 5, and Oberlin October 6 I filled every one of these appointments, and one more, and those who attended my meetings, I feel sure, will do me the justice to say that I didn't "feather" my speeches either.

Having thus completed my work in Ohio, without having a "sore throat," or pretending to have one, in accordance with the programme made for me by the committee, I proceeded, on the morning of the 8th of October, to Adrian, Michigan, where, at 2 P M that day, I addressed, in the open air, nearly 10,000 people, going the same evening to Detroit, where I addressed a large audience in the Grand opera house.

The next morning, in company with D P Sagendorf, of Charlotte, Michigan, and one of the members of the national committee, and several other prominent prohibitionists, I started for my next appointment, at Kalamazoo, making several short speeches on the way, and addressing a meeting in Kalamazoo both in the afternoon and evening

From Kalamazoo I went with other prohibition workers to Flint, Michigan where, at 2 P M, October 9, I addressed a large open-air meeting, leaving there, in company with David Preston, prohibition candidate for governor of Michigan, in the evening, for Detroit, from which city, that night at 12 o'clock, I started via Buffalo for Philadelphia, arriving there about 9 o clock on the evening of the 10th I spoke in the Academy of Music on the evening of the 11th I spent a good portion of the day of the 12th with R. J. Burdette at Ardmore, eight miles from the city.

On the 13th I addressed a meeting in Monument square, Baltimore, and then another meeting the same evening in East Baltimore

That night at 12 o'clock, I started for Brooklyn, New York, where on the evening of the 14th I spoke in the rink the 15th at Middleton, Connecticut the 16th at Worcester, Massachusetts, the 17th at Chickering hall, New York city, the 18th at Newark, New Jersey and thence to western New York, where I held eight meetings. Every one of the foregoing meetings was in strict pursuance to the appointments made for me by the national prohibition committee. I have not been in or passed through Pittsburg for nearly two years

HIS TRAVELING COMPANION

Mr George R Scott formerly of the New York Weekly Witness, joined me at Oberlin, Ohio, October 6, and traveled with me and attended all the meetings from that time up to and including the one at Newark, New Jersey, October 18 He, and no other acquaintance, accompanied me from Michigan to Philadelphia, nor did I on the way see any friend or acquaintance from my "own state"

Mr Clarkson further says in his Tribune letter of the 9th "I may add that neither the national committee nor any one acting for it ever made an overture or proposition of any kind to St. John. All that it did was to listen and discuss overtures and propositions made to it through the medium which he employed to reach it" Yet in the same letter he convicts himself, for he says "He (myself) was asked, in order to prove the sincerity of his offer, to withdraw from Ohio the last week before the October election in that state" Who was there in this transaction to doubt my "sincerity" but J S Clarkson? But further on he says "Things which were demanded of St John as to his movements in Ohio were pledged by that friend, and carried out by St John" Three parties are here referred to first, the party that made the demand second, the man that gave the pledge, and third, myself, who "carried" it out Now, I submit that there must have been somebody to have named the "things which were demanded," and who could it have been but Clarkson and yet he says that "all that the committee did was to listen to and discuss overtures and propositions made to it" If Mr Clarkson was an honest man why did he not indignantly refuse to entertain such propositions

THE LEGATE LETTER

But finally Mr Clarkson names James F Legate, of Leavenworth, Kan, as (the long suppressed name of) this middle man, and proceeds to publish what he claims to be Legate's letter, which, whether genuine or not, serves further to show up Clarkson's perfidy Who makes a witness of Legate in this controversy? Why, Clarkson What was their relations? Is it Clarkson's witness Mr Legate, tell Here is what the associated press reports him as saying the 13th inst "I was acting as the agent [illegible] the wish of Mr Clarkson, as member of the national committee and those with whom he was associated in Ohio, in all that was done"

But what does Mr Legate say about myself? Let us give his own words, published in the [illegible] State Journal, Topeka, Kan, the 11th inst Here they are "That Governor St John had never talked to him on the subject [illegible] offered to make any terms with the republicans, and that St. John had never authorized him to make any propositions, and that [illegible] that he had done so was a willful [illegible] to injure St John and cast down the man who had [illegible] on him" Thus is Clarkson's own witness, Legate, is made his [illegible] I am exonerated from all complicity [illegible]

But it is said I saw Legate at Oberlin, O, October [illegible] That is true But why was he there and in whose interest? Was he not in [illegible] managing the republican campaign in Ohio for the express purpose of making a republican speech which he did on the evening of October [illegible] in answer to an address delivered by me the 6th

MORE ABOUT CLARKSON

But to throw a little more light on Clarkson's relation to this whole matter hear what his friend McCullough says in an interview reported in the Post of St Louis, the 10th ult "Mr Clarkson of the Des Moines, Iowa, Register, who was a member of the committee, and who had charge of the department which conducted the negotiations, has proof of the fact. This is in such shape that he is bound to some extent, and can't use it, but one fact is certain—I am sure of it—St. John wanted $25,000 and $30 a lecture" Now I submit to the candid judgment of every good man unbiased by partisan prejudice, even though I should interpose no word in my own defense, don't the statements of Clarkson, Legate and McCullough show that there was a plan laid to either filch money from the treasury of the national republican committee, or to bribe me to betray an honest, sincere and conscientious minority, and thus prevent a fair expression of the will of the people, and through such corrupt means gain victory for the republican party? Failing in this, and smarting under the lash of political defeat and blasted hopes, to crown the infamy, Legate is treacherously betrayed, and offered as a sacrifice upon the altar of corruption And these are my accusers

AS TO SENATOR PLUMB

But it has been charged that I secured early in the campaign from Senator Plumb a letter introducing Legate to the national committee as a person authorized to act and speak for him" (me) To which I reply that I have not seen Senator Plumb for nearly a year, and have had no correspondence with him since Mr Blaine was nominated, and never requested him or anybody else to do any such thing and Senator Plumb is at liberty to publish anything that he has from me touching this matter

It will be observed that it is stated that I wrote letters to H W Gage, state organizer for Ohio, A T Corry of Samantha, Rev Mr [illegible] of Columbus and Prof W G Frost of Oberlin" Now I respectfully ask these men if any letter or letters or other communications were ever received from me that tend to throw any light on this question, to publish the facts.

Again it is charged "there are several gentlemen who could help prove" that I sold out to the democrats and the editor of the Chicago News is mentioned as one, and Senator Gorman of Maryland as another Now, while I have not the honor of a personal acquaintance with either of these gentlemen I respectfully request them, in the interest of common fairness if they have any evidence that criminates me to reveal it to the public

SPECIFIC DENIALS

I didn't go to Philadelphia with Mr Legate nor from Philadelphia to New York with him but I did, when in Philadelphia, the night of the 11th of October, in answer to a request made through the columns of the New York Tribune of that date by what purported to be "the New York State Temperance assembly," that I withdraw from the campaign write an open letter published in New York and Philadelphia papers of the 13th in reply to said request, in which I said that I should neither withdraw nor assume a neutral position but would continue the fight against the liquor traffic as long as I live and the flag of our country waved its protecting folds over legalized dram shops I was never in the headquarters of either the democratic or republican party, and to this day don't know where they were located, nor did I during the campaign ever speak, write or telegraph to, or ever to my knowledge see any member of the national or state committees of either of said parties nor did I receive a penny for a pledge or promise, directly or indirectly, from any political party, committee or other organization, except my legitimate expenses, amounting to less than $900, paid by the national committee of the prohibition party. Nor did I ever do, or propose to do or omit to do anything for the purpose of decreasing the prohibition vote, or increase the vote of either of the other political parties Nor did I "get sore throat," or pretend "to get sore throat," and I think that even the republican party will not claim that I "feathered" my speeches And I again challenge my defamers to prove to the contrary

"With charity for all and malice toward none," I now submit this statement to the people, with a firm conviction and full realization that for the truth thereof I am to answer to God

JOHN P ST. JOHN

CLARKSON'S REPLY.

He Boldly Challenges St John to Bring Suit for Libel

DES MOINES, Ia., Jan 17 – St John's dispatch from St Paul did not reach Des Moines till after midnight, and Clarkson had merely time to glance over it. He said

It is more of a confession than a contradiction He deals only in quibble, and craftily evades the main facts. He virtually rests his whole case on the assertion that Legate's claim to be his agent was false and that the Legate letter, as printed, is a forgery He knows that both of such assertions are untrue He knows, too, that if what he now asserts was not untrue he could get a letter from Plumb vindicating both himself and Legate The latter came to me as St John's agent, with a letter from Plumb, which showed that the Kansas senator knew Legate was acting for St. John, and that he was authorized to act for him

ST JOHN CHALLENGED

Why does he not bring a letter from Plumb to deny these facts which I gave to the public in the Globe Democrat interview on the 13th? And why does he not bring suit for libel against myself, my paper and the Globe-Democrat, and so compel all the facts to be brought to light. He knows he dare not sue for libel, and that he dare not let Senator Plumb and others go on the witness stand and tell under oath, what they know He and others will not voluntarily tell that which they learned from St. John and Legate in confidence, but in court they would have to tell it Why doesn't St. John bring them there? Senator Plumb has told Mr McCullough of the Globe-Democrat, that he has in his own possession a letter in St. John's own handwriting which would in itself prove his corruption in the late campaign and damn him everlastingly Why doesn't he either demand of Plumb that he print this letter, or that Plumb shall give him a letter of vindication In his letter he says Plumb is at liberty to print any letter he has from him touching this matter Why doesn't he demand that Plumb shall print any letter of his that he has, whether it was in regard to his deal with republicans or democrats His quibbling over the Legate letters, and his insinuations that they are forgeries, prove that he is toiling and sorrowing He knows both that the letters are genuine and that a fac simile of one of them, printed in the Globe-Democrat of the 13th, has been identified in Kansas as being incontestably that of Legate, the man who has been his next friend for years, and who represented him in his effort to sell out to the republicans

THE PRINCIPAL POINT

St John seeks to make prominent use of his denial that he was at such and such places with his agent, Legate All that I have said is to his being at any place outside of Ohio with Legate, [illegible] Legate's statement to me While St John was in Ohio Legate would send from Cincinnati dispatches to him and receive answers from him, which I saw As to their meeting in places outside of Ohio I had only the knowledge given by Legate's dispatches from the places at the time, saying he and St John were there, and Legate's letter afterwards, saying the same thing and I never have pretended to state otherwise. The florid and hysterical [illegible] which he closes his statement, made up of [illegible] and intelligence that he will answer to God for the truth of it [illegible]

FIVE INDIANS FROZEN TO DEATH

DALLAS, Jan 18—News is received here from passengers on the Fort Worth and Denver railway to the effect that late yesterday evening five Kiowa Indians were found frozen to death near Old Camp Augus, Indian territory, about forty miles northwest of Wichita Falls by a party of freighters They were all huddled together under a bank or declivity, and judging from their accoutrements they must have been on a hunt for game and on their way to Wichita Falls for ammunition and supplies Two empty quart bottles that had contained whisky lay near the corpses. It is said Indians on the reservations are in a distressed condition, notwithstanding the aid of the government in furnishing them supplies The Indians found frozen to death were poorly clad, and evidently anticipated no severe weather before reaching Wichita Falls. Their bodies are to be taken back to the reservation

CONGRESSIONAL FORECAST

Measures Likely to Come Up for Consideration This Week

WASHINGTON, Jan 18 To-morrow, in the house of representatives is the day for monthly call of committees for motions to suspend the rules The call rests with the committee on [illegible] and Representative Hill intends to move the passage of his bill, reported this session to provide for exercise of jurisdiction [illegible] consular courts. Motions will be offered [illegible] as follows [illegible] days for consideration of various measures reported by the [illegible] to pass the bill [illegible] for all the [illegible] Indian lands in severalty [illegible]

When the house adjourned Saturday it was [illegible] understood that the [illegible] judiciary would endeavor to keep the house in session to-morrow until that committee was reached in order that [illegible] bill might again be called up This committee is among the last on the list [illegible], however, who has had charge of the bill, says he was not aware of any such purpose

The time to be devoted to legislative business in the house Tuesday will be short

On December 17 last the house resolved that January 20, after 2 o clock, should be devoted to the delivery of tributes to the memory of the late Representative Evins of South Carolina During the early part of the day the committee on elections intends to call up the contested election case of Massey vs Wise, of Virginia On the same day the committee will probably report the contested cases of McLean, republican, vs Broadhead, democrat, of Missouri, and Fredericks, democrat, vs Wilson, republican, of Iowa The reports will be in favor of Broadhead and Fredericks The committee intends to call them up for consideration as soon thereafter as possible

THE APPROPRIATION BILLS

Of the fourteen annual appropriation bills not one has yet become a law The military academy appropriation bill has passed both houses of congress, but the house has refused to concur in the senate amendments, and the bill has been sent to a conference committee Both the pensions and the consular and diplomatic appropriation bills have passed the house, and are now in the senate committee on appropriations The river and harbor bill is in the house The District of Columbia bill is ready to be reported to the house appropriations committee, and the naval bill is under consideration The army, postoffice, fortifications, sundry civil, legislative, executive and judicial, and Indian bills are still in course of preparation by the sub-committee The agricultural appropriation bill is yet to be matured by the committee on agriculture

It is possible the army, navy and postoffice appropriation measures will be reported to the house during the week If so, nearly the entire week will be taken up by their discussion If, however the committee is not able to report these bills, and an opportunity is offered for the consideration of other business an effort will be made to secure discussion of sundry measures which have been pending for some time Stockslager says he will continue to call up bills making appropriations for public buildings throughout the country Townshend the Mexican pension bill, and Willis, the educational bill Henley, of the committee on public lands will endeavor to obtain consideration of the bill providing for forfeiture of the Northern Pacific land grant and Hewitt if opportunity offers, the bill to carry out the provisions of the Mexican treaty

IN THE SENATE

To-morrow will be devoted to eulogies on the late Senator Anthony Twelve senators have announced their purpose to speak It is probable the remainder of the week will be consumed in the consideration of the inter state commerce bill and the Nicaraguan treaty Should the inter state commerce bill be disposed of or be displaced, Senator Coke will endeavor to secure consideration of the bill to provide for the improvement of the channel between Galveston harbor and the gulf of Mexico Following this on the list of special orders are the Texas-Pacific forfeiture bill, in charge of Senator Plumb, and Senator Van Wyck's bill to declare certain railroad grant lands subject to taxation

BURNED TO DEATH.

Thirteen Insane Patients Perish at Kankakee, Illinois.

HOW THE DISASTER OCCURRED

Fearful Scenes in and About the Burning Building Many Lives Saved by Daring Work—Full Particulars.

KANKAKEE, Ill, Jan 18—The south infirmary of the Illinois eastern hospital for the insane was burned this morning at 4 30 The fire originated in the furnace room and had got a good heading before it was discovered The woodwork of the building being pine it burned very rapidly The building was occupied by forty five patients and one night watchman Seventeen patients are missing and thirteen bodies have been recovered All the patients were infirm The bedridden were rescued first, but those able to assist themselves did not realize the danger, and many of them perished The attendants lost all their effects, and many had a very narrow escape One of them had to tie bed clothes together and let himself down from a top window

The building was a new one and cost $70,000, but was not yet provided with water works The building was a two-story stone and brick, with no wood about it except the floors and stairways It was completed last August. It was used as an infirmary, with forty-five insane inmates—twenty-three on the first floor and twenty two on the second

Attendants Brown Rose and wife were sleeping on the second floor Attendants Reid and Williams and Fireman Lalarge slept on the first floor The building was heated by hot-air furnaces It was twelve degrees below zero when the watchman, named Cobb, discovered smoke issuing from the floor immediately above the furnaces He awoke the attendants. The smoke at once became drawn through the hot air flues and along the halls and stairways, to all parts of the building The fire spread so rapidly that all efforts to save the building in the absence of a fire alarm to summon help, and for want of facilities to quench the flames were found to be in vain

RESCUING THE PATIENTS

Attendant W A Reid then began dragging and carrying out patients Many patients, clad in night clothing only, rushed from the bitter cold air back into the building Reid, at the risk of his own life, struggled on until his twenty-one patients were rescued, when he became exhausted and was carried away

On the second floor Attendant Rose and wife heard the alarm and escaped down the stairway just before it fell Attendant Brown, sleeping on the same floor, was awakened by smoke and attempted to save a patient in an adjoining room, and failed—sliding down by means of a sheet from his window he jumped to the ground

Superintendent R S Dewey reached the scene, and with ladders climbed to the second story windows, smashed the windows and was able to rescue some patients thereby

Almost all the patients refused to co-operate in efforts being made to save them, and were only rescued by being dragged from the flames and forcibly prevented from returning

A marvelous escape was that of an inmate who fell with the second floor, struck the burning debris above the furnace and bounded through a window to the ground, uninjured

Remains of the bodies of twelve patients have been taken from the ruins, burned to fragments, and only to be identified by the location in which they were found

THE CORONER'S INQUEST.

At the coroner's inquest this afternoon Superintendent Dewey testified that he had asked the legislature two years ago for $25 000 to protect those detached wards from fire, that $1000 was allowed, all of which was used in drains and hydrants, that the amount was insufficient to answer the purpose He suggested that the floors above the hot air furnaces be changed, it being shown in the evidence it was but four inches from the outside and ten inches from the inside of the furnace to the joists. He gave two reasons for the great number of deaths First—the patients were almost all suffocated by smoke before they could be reached and second—The inability or unwillingness of insane patients to try to help themselves.

The remains of the bodies, with one exception did not aggregate each but little more than a handful of charred bones The entire remains of ten of the victims were spread on a small table two feet square

Friends are arriving in search of lost ones The scenes on their arrival and the view of the remains are necessarily very heartrending. Telegrams are pouring in from all parts of the state from parties asking as to the safety of their friends among the 1500 inmates of the hospital.

The coroner's jury, which is adjourned until to-morrow afternoon, is investigating as to whether the furnaces were defective The fact that there is no general fire alarm between the various buildings of the hospital or any system of water works to protect life and property there accounts largely for the very large loss of life

A BRAVE EFFORT

H W, Belden, aged 50, of Galesburg, one of the victims, and the only one whose remains preserved even a semblance of a human being was a prominent man in his section of the state He was on the second floor, was an invalid, and was unable to help himself Superintendent Dewey, aided by an attendant placed a ladder to his window Dewey ascended it, and broke the glass with his hands, but being unable to break the sash, descended for some implement to break it with Meantime Belden's shrieks for help were loud and agonizing As Dewey reascended the shrieks died away Smoke and flames poured from the window, so that no help could be given him. Dr Dewey, hearing calls for help from another window, hurried to the rescue, and, though a man of light build, dragged a 195-pound patient through the window, and bore him safely to the ground

The burned building was used as an infirmary, many of the inmates being unable, from sickness, to walk. The only chance for obtaining water was from small washstand faucets, not even fire buckets or barrels being on hand

TESTIMONY OF EMPLOYES

Night Watchman Cobb testified before the coroner's jury that he registered a report of his calls every half hour The register shows that he visited the furnace room at 3 40 and found it all right, then that the floor immediately over the furnaces had frequently been noticed by attendants sleeping there to be uncomfortably hot that the furnace was roofed by sheet-iron, then by two layers of brick laid in mortar, with a space of but six inches between them and the pine

Attendant E C Williams testified that five minutes after the fire was discovered it was blazing through the floor [illegible] around the furnace

Attendant J C [illegible], night watchman, testified that he [illegible] attendants [illegible] and carried two ladders to the burning building, from the carpenter shop, 100 yards away

Though the alarm of fire was sounded in the city [illegible] the fire department [illegible] the hospital is half a mile away [illegible] The state does not insure its property but a comparatively slight appropriation [illegible] the present incomplete facilities will furnish the hospital adequate means for [illegible]

A TRUSTEE INTERVIEWED

Hospital Trustee [illegible] of Chicago being asked by a reporter [illegible] of the matter said "I have just reached the hospital and have had no opportunity to investigate the matter in a manner satisfactory to myself As to the cause, I am not posted, except in a very general way I scarcely feel that I would be justified in expressing an opinion, as I have not been able to gather facts sufficient yet to enable me to tell who, if anybody, is to blame The matter will be thoroughly investigated, after which an opinion from me may be due to you. At present I do not feel like saying anything further." He refused to talk further

There is a strong feeling among the people of Kankakee that an investigation, thorough and exhaustive, should be made into the causes of such terrible destruction of life and property

One of those reported missing, name unknown, was seen over in the city this afternoon and it is hoped he is safe.

While the fire was progressing, patients in the other wards near by became nearly frantic in their endeavors to get out to the fire Some were weeping piteously others were praying, and still others screaming with alarm, calling for friends they knew to be in the burning building

BIG BLAZE IN BOSTON

BOSTON, Jan 18—To-night fire broke out in the Bay State sugar refinery, No [illegible] Eastern avenue The building was of brick four stories high, with a frontage of about fifty feet on Eastern avenue and extended back about ninety feet to Sargent's wharf The flames spread to the Standard Dye wood works which abut upon the refinery on the Sargent wharf end, and extended down the avenue towards the wharf These mills are three stories high and all but eighty or ninety feet in length They are nearly or quite destroyed The refinery is operated by E Atkins & Co, who, it is understood own the brick block as well as the refinery buildings Their loss will probably be heavy but is fully insured The dye mill property was owned by heirs of George N Black

MONDAY MORNING, JANUARY 19, 1885.

NOT DUE TO POLITICS.

It is a very common thing for party organs and party newspapers to attribute "hard times," when they occur, to something in the conduct of the party opposed to them. The remedy always prescribed is, "Vote our party up and vote the other party down." Many republican journals have attributed the extraordinary depression of industry and business experienced during the last two months to the election of Cleveland, and many journals have been saying that it was only necessary to wait for the inauguration of Cleveland, when the benefit of democratic rule will immediately restore prosperity to the country.

Pitiful as is the shallowness of this twaddle, it is exceedingly common, and many appear to believe in it. The credulity on which it is based is a form of that error which leads great numbers to imagine that some singular power over the laws of industry, production and trade resides in the government and is exercised by it; that the prosperity of the individual is dependent rather on the government than on his own intelligence, foresight, judgment and industry, and that it is the duty of the government to take care of all the people subject to it, to see that all are always prosperous, and that one person shall not accumulate property faster than another.

It is unfortunate that men do not stop to consider the industrial and financial situation—do not recognize the fact that excessive production, whether of manufactured goods or of grain, meat or any other commodity, involves a shrinkage in nominal values, and a shrinkage in prices involves commercial and industrial depression; and this is true regardless of party ascendency, regardless of protection or free trade. Such depressions occur periodically, not only in this country, but all over the world. There have been no general elections in Europe, yet all industries are more depressed there than on this side of the Atlantic. A so-called "boom," whether commercial or industrial, is generally the forerunner of depression and hard times, but "booms" are inseparable from commercial and industrial liberty, and we must, per force, accept the bad consequences along with the good. People should not lose their heads in prosperity or in adversity, and farmers, manufacturers and traders should intelligently consider the entire situation.

We shall have presently what men call "better times." Revival of industry and trade may not come for a year or two, indeed, but it will come. Pretty certainly it will come before the close of the Cleveland administration, and then we shall find many democratic organs exclaiming that it is "all due to the benefits of democratic rule," just as the corresponding class of republican organs are now saying the present collapsed condition of industry and trade is due to the late election, and that no one had a right to expect anything else.

POOLING CONTRACT VOID.

A year ago the Calumet and Hecla, the Quincy and other Michigan copper mining companies entered into an agreement to pool the products of their mines. The Calumet and Hecla company were to make all sales of copper and none of the others were to sell any. The agreement was to continue one year. In August another agreement was executed, substantially the same as the first, except that it was to continue until March, 1886. In accordance with this agreement the Calumet and Hecla Company made contracts with European companies for the sale and delivery, during the periods covered by the agreement, of many thousand tons of copper. A part of the consideration of this contract was that no more copper should be sold by the companies for exportation, during the period mentioned, and the European parties agreed that none of the copper should be reimported into the United States. The Quincy company violated the agreement by undertaking to sell copper on its own account to parties in Europe, and the other companies at once began a suit to compel it to remain in the pool. In this suit a preliminary injunction was obtained restraining the Quincy company from carrying out its contracts of sales. At the hearing before Judge Lawrence in the supreme court of New York, on a motion to continue the injunction, the Quincy company argued that the contracts were executed for the purpose of carrying into effect agreements which they had made to combine with each other, to prevent free competition among themselves in selling copper, and to enable the Calumet and Hecla company to control the amount of Lake Superior copper which should be put on the market, and also to control and keep up beyond what they would otherwise be, the prices at which copper should be sold during the continuance of the contracts, and that this combination was an act injurious to trade and commerce and contrary to the public policy and hence was illegal and void. This defense has been decided valid by Judge Lawrence, who has declared the pooling contract void, as it was a restraint of trade and against public policy. His decision, however, does not prevent the plaintiff corporations from recovering damages in an action at law for any injury suffered by them through the violation of the contract.

The case possesses general interest as showing how the managers of the great monopolies in this country combine to interfere with what are called the natural laws of trade, and that they place restrictions upon trade more oppressive than those which they complain of when imposed by general or local legislation. In other words, they are not willing to abide by their much-vaunted principle that things will regulate themselves, if the state will let them alone, but insist upon making all the regulations themselves. The case is also of much general interest as showing that the courts of this country are competent to aid the people in resisting the attempts of monopolists to regulate trade, and that they are more inclined from year to year to interpose their power in the interest of public policy. As we remarked a few days ago, if the people fully understood the extent of their power under existing laws to relieve themselves of the oppression of monopolies, they would have less reason for asking additional legislation upon this subject.

John Taylor, the head of the Mormon church, swore positively while a witness in court a few days ago that he had no knowledge whatever in relation to a certain matter about which he was questioned. The next Sunday he alluded to the matter in his discourse, and as all his hearers knew that he had committed deliberate perjury in swearing that he was ignorant as to that of which they knew he had full knowledge, he thought it fit to explain that when he testified, as he did, he meant that he had no knowledge of the matter which he chose to impart. This is the Mormon idea and it is religiously adhered to, that if a Mormon is required to tell under oath anything in relation to which his church forbids him to testify, he must commit perjury. With such a state of affairs it is obvious that any trial in which any Mormon is a witness or a juror, may be at any moment converted into a farce, a mere travesty on justice.

The Philadelphia Press recently published a valuable summary of state legislation on the liquor question, from which it appears that five states—Maine, New Hampshire, Vermont, Iowa and Kansas—have prohibitory laws. Fifteen states and territories have more or less stringent "high license" or "local option" laws. These are Rhode Island, New York, Pennsylvania, West Virginia, North and South Carolina, Georgia, Alabama, Arkansas, Illinois, Minnesota, Nebraska, Dakota and Washington. The other states and territories either have no laws, or, having them, do not try to enforce them.

A Tennessee court has decided, in a case where a colored woman holding a first class ticket was ejected from a railroad train because she would not go into the smoking car, but insisted upon riding in a coach reserved for white passengers, that the railroad company is liable in damages, and the woman was awarded $500. The case was tried under a state law, and the judge declared that even if there were no statute upon the subject, the plaintiff's right to recover would be equally good at common law.

THE QUESTION OF RATES.

There is a plain disposition on the part of the legislature to undertake the regulation of the rates of carrying freight and passengers on the railroads of the state. While the power of the legislature over the subject is undoubted, that power, if it is to be invoked with beneficial results, must be exercised in an intelligent and reasonable manner. Every member of the legislature seems disposed to concede this. It cannot be the wish of any reasonable person to see the power of the state exercised in an arbitrary fashion, with hurtful results.

Discussion of the subject is new in Oregon. Since there is talk of establishing maximum rates by law the first question is whether maximum rates can safely be made. This opens a wide field of inquiry. To fix a maximum rate for carrying passengers may be easy enough. It may be made so much per mile for each passenger carried, and, as passengers are told by the head and accommodations are equal, there is no difficulty. But how about the maximum rate for freight? Shall the statutes declare that there shall be no greater charge for moving freight than say four cents a ton per mile? And can this be made to work without injury to the country as well as to the railroads?

A car load of salt or coal from Portland to Eugene City, or from Portland to Pendleton, could not pay a high rate. It would be necessary to carry it cheaply, if it were carried at all. But a car load of dry goods or other valuable merchandise could pay a much higher rate without any addition whatever to the price at which the goods were sold. Now if the maximum rate is four cents a ton per mile the railroad company cannot charge more for carrying the goods, no matter what their value. It would be unable to charge a rate on costly goods which would partly reimburse or equalize the expense of carrying the cheaper commodities at such charges as they would bear or could pay, and the result would be that the consumers of high priced goods would have an advantage in transportation charges over the consumers of goods of lower values. It would hardly be possible to go through the whole schedule of commodities and fix differential rates in the statutes, and yet on the very threshold of the subject we find that there must be differential rates, that uniform rates are impracticable, and that the charges for carrying goods must be based to some extent at least on the value they possess. If, therefore, the doctrine of maximum rates is to be adopted it can hardly go with safety beyond a few of the leading commodities of the common and cheaper sort,—say wheat and flour, lumber, salt and coal. Uniform rates to cover all classes of freight are out of the question.

On this point the railroad commission of California, in their report just made to the governor of that state, say: "The freight schedule is more than any other subject to all the varying conditions and vicissitudes known to railroad service, and involves the study and application of such factors as distance and direction of movement, volume, class and general character of the traffic. Reaching out and away from fertile valleys by navigable rivers, over mountain grades and curvatures, through tunnels and loops, to diversified resources and unequal supplies, it demonstrates to an experimental certainty the absolute absurdity of uniform rates, and makes the reason and justice of differential charges so plain that a wayfaring corporation, though a fool, could not err therein."

In California the railroad commission have full power over the whole subject. They say: "Where nature has made a difference the commission, by differential rates, has made, and will continue to make, a corresponding distinction. Thus conceding their natural advantages to seventy or more favored localities by seashore, it extends to a hundred mountain towns, not the best or cheapest, but better and cheaper communication."

The subject is not a simple one. On the contrary, it is infinitely varied and complex, and if it is to be dealt with in a way that will not do the public more hurt than good every step must be cautiously taken.

CITY AND COUNTRY.

One great advantage possessed by the United States over other nations is the almost unlimited area of tillable land open to cultivation by those who care to engage in the occupation of farming. Even in the older states there are hundreds of thousands of acres that might be turned to good account, but so long as the rich and easily-farmed lands of the west are open to settlement on such favorable terms the less desirable spots in the eastern and middle states will be measurably neglected. "The country," then, and especially that vague and vast region known as "the west," will be the asylum for all who fail to find employment in "the city," and whenever trade languishes and labor is depressed so as to threaten prolonged want and destitution, relief must be sought through the agency of the plow.

An inquiry into the condition of tenement-house life in New York reveals the fact that one-fourth of the whole population of the United States are crowded into the cities, while in 1800 only one-twentieth were so congregated. The bad effects of swarming into cities like bees into hives are not confined to the tenement houses. These exhibit enough of poverty, sickness and death, but they embrace scarcely a tithe of the destroying influences at work in our social organism. The difference between living in city and country, as regards the sanitary, physical and moral welfare of the people, is not inaptly expressed in Cowper's line "God made the country and man made the town."

It is a startling truth that nearly 70 per cent. of the mortality of New York city occurs in tenement houses, and a still larger proportion of what are known as epidemic or filth diseases is attributable to the packing of large masses of human beings in ill-ventilated apartments. All the conditions of comfortable and healthful living are lacking in portions of all large cities, and those who have families to raise and yet lack the means essential to the procurement of proper accommodations should flee to the country as to a place of refuge.

It is most remarkable that people will continue to flock into the cities and take all the risks to health, prosperity and even life itself which are involved in a struggle for existence therein, when they could with so little effort and so little sacrifice procure for themselves comfortable homes in the country, where they would not only be free from the dread of panics and poverty, but would almost certainly attain to that independence which is the aim and ambition of every head of a family.

The action of the bank of England directors, in ordering that clerks who get less than $750 a year must not marry, introduces a new rule into the banking business. It is said to have caused no little sensation in the newspapers, and naturally the young women are "rushing the directors by letters to the Times. The question as an element of banking practice, is a novel one, and its full application would raise several interesting questions. On the scale suggested, would a young man be justified in going to see his girl at a salary of $500 a year? Or, if with less than $750 a year, he should have the care of a widowed mother or a disabled father, fall into his hands, would the eminently respectable bank directors require him to refuse these burdens for fear the bank might suffer? If a man has the requisite amount to marry on, will the bank of England consent to his having more than one child until he gets his salary put up to $1000? The admixture of these little domestic relations with the dry details of discounts and deposits gives the banking business quite a romantic tinge.

On the part of the ring of spoils men who are running the city there is an intense desire to get a special city assessor. Such an official, under their direction, would double or quadruple the valuation of property, and then the revenue would afford pickings and stealings worth something. At present the ring is sadly hampered for want of funds.

In 1870 it cost over four cents a pound to refine sugar, while at present it is done at or below a cost of one-half cent a pound. Cuban sugar now bears a lower quotation in New York than at any time since 1851-54.

The Jeffersonian simplicity with which it was proposed to inaugurate Cleveland, receives several highly ornamental additions from the committee in charge of the arrangements at Washington. This body takes its simplicity after the style of Oliver Wendell Holmes' poetry. It does not want any of your cumbrous and overgrown processions, and will be satisfied with one occupying the mile from the capitol to the treasury building. It does not consider it wise to dance the new administration into power with a costly and expensive ball. So it puts up with one which will only take in 12,000 people at five dollars each and will spend the $60,000 of receipts on the music, supper and such decorations as the government cannot furnish.

THE STATE INSANE ASYLUM.

The condition of affairs at the state insane asylum was pretty fully reported in the governor's message. In the report of the medical superintendent, Dr. H. Carpenter, additional facts of general interest are presented, and some suggestions of value are made. During the period embraced in this report, from October 22, 1883, to November 30, 1884, there were 182 admissions in addition to those received from the East Portland asylum. Of this number, seventeen were readmissions. It is gratifying to note that no suicide or serious accident has occurred. Of the 135 discharged, 55 were considered recovered. Since the opening of the new asylum 46 deaths have occurred, several of which closely followed admission, and in respect to these cases the superintendent says it was a mistake on the part of friends to send them to the asylum. He also calls attention to the mistake of friends, which causes great injury to patients, in practicing deception to get them to the asylum. It is better, he says, to treat them with frankness, as they are treated upon their arrival, being informed that their minds are believed to be not right and that they are brought to the asylum for treatment. As many as possible are kept engaged in some light employment, "as experience has shown that employment comes first in the mental treatment of insanity." Attention is called to the difficulty of finding suitable employment for men during the winter months, when no work can be done upon the farm. But amusements are afforded them, and religious services are held nearly every Sunday, which about 150 patients attend with interest.

It is unfortunate that there is not a sufficient appropriation for returning patients to their homes, and for their support until they can find employment. The various railroad and steamboat lines have kindly issued half-fare tickets to many of the discharged patients. But as the superintendent says, "it would be but human and a wise economy to make ample provision for the return of the destitute to their acquaintances."

From the tables accompanying this report it appears that of the 182 admitted to the new asylum, 104 were natives of the United States, 61 of foreign countries and 17 unknown nativity. The great majority of them were between the ages of 20 and 50 years. The laboring class furnishes the largest number 39, and next to that the farmers have the largest representation among the patients, there being 27 farmers and 12 housewives of farmers. There was but one sheep-herder. Of the supposed causes of insanity, intemperance shows the largest number of victims, 28, one of which was a female. Vile habits caused the insanity of 18. The cause of 66 cases is put down as unknown. Of those, the cause of whose malady is known, if we include in the number 9 cases caused by domestic trouble, it appears that 55 of the 122 were the fault of the patients. Married life failed to preserve the sanity of 48 males and 21 females. On the other hand, single life seems to have told less severely upon females, seventy-seven single males and only eighteen single females being among the patients. It appears that two, one male and one female, were discharged because they were not insane. The regimen of the patients appears to be good and sufficient, and the proportion of the "recovered" and the "improved" is gratifyingly large. The legislature should promptly provide for a different system of sewerage, as the health, not only of the inmates but of the residents of the surrounding neighborhood, is menaced by the present bad arrangement. Proper protection against danger from fire should also be afforded at once.

The navigation of the Willamette river ought to be free, but as that is not at present attainable, there should be as near an approach to free navigation as possible. The bill introduced by Mr. Kendy to reduce the toll for passing through the locks at Oregon City is a move in the right direction. The rate which his bill proposes to establish is half the present rate for freight per ton, and less than half the present rate for passengers, and is, perhaps as great a reduction as the legislature ought to make under the circumstances. The committee to whom this bill is referred will doubtless give the subject careful consideration, and if they find that a greater reduction should be made, will amend the bill accordingly.

John Swinton says that the journal known—though not widely—as John Swinton's Paper, must be better supported or he will have to cease publication. John teaches the doctrine of no rent, no property, no pay, and he should not complain if his subscribers indorse his theories to the extent of not paying him.

A reader at Alkali who missed several numbers of THE OREGONIAN during the blockade desires to know what was done with the bill to forfeit the Northern Pacific land grant. The bill has not yet been passed by congress. Only the bill to forfeit the Oregon Central grant has become a law.

"Mr. Hume, what do you consider the object of legislation?" asked Lord Russell. "The greatest good to the greatest number." "What do you consider the greatest number?" "Number one," replied Hume. Are the conditions very different in Oregon from the conditions in England?

BOTH SIDES.

A Personal Discussion of the Antagonisms at Salem.

SALEM, 17th January.

At the Chemeketa hotel last night, I fell in with Hon. G. A. Wagner, formerly a member of the legislature and for several years a close attendant upon its sessions. Mr. Wagner is from Benton county, the very center and headquarters of the prejudice toward Portland, which has divided the republican majority into sectional factions, and he has been an advisor and an active agent in the anti-Portland fight during the past week. We naturally talked of the things going on about us. "What," I asked, "is the cause of this political ill feeling? To me it seems utterly without reason. Portland has not gobbled up the lion's share of either the honors or profits of politics. One senator is a Portland man, another senator and the governor are from eastern Oregon, our congressman-elect and the state printer are from southern Oregon, the secretary of state and state treasurer are from Marion, and the superintendent of public instruction is from your own county of Benton.

The president of the senate last session was a valley man and the speaker of the house was from Columbia county. And as to the present organization of the legislature Portland as a locality has been left completely out, and both houses are entirely dominated so far as their chairmanships are concerned, by valley men. Portland has but two men—Senator Dolph and Congressman George—in conspicuous station. Besides Mr. George is as much a Linn county as a Multnomah man. And in the matter of representation Multnomah has but ten members in the legislature, when a fair apportionment based upon population would give her fifteen or sixteen. Multnomah pays double the taxes of any other county. And as regards party considerations, Multnomah furnishes nearly all the money subscribed for national and state elections, she furnishes the organization and in the end she gives the majorities which elect. Leaving out the majority there last June, the republican nominee for congress would have been beaten, and if our ten members of the legislature were replaced by democrats, the opposition would have a majority of six on joint ballot, and consequently the senator to be elected would be a democrat. And if you choose to look at this matter from a business point of view, the country is under many obligations to Portland. To a great extent, perhaps in equal proportion, the obligation is reciprocal, but it is certainly true that the country is hundreds upon hundreds of thousands of dollars in debt to Portland. On every side here I hear criticisms, and sometimes downright abuse, of Portland business men, and yet the Portland banks, if they wanted to do it, could to-morrow hang the sheriff's red flag in front of five of every six stores in the Willamette valley and could throw half the farmers of the state into bankruptcy. Of course Portland finds its advantage in not urging foreclosures in a season of hard times, and it is perhaps more from a business view than from a sense of affection for the country that our bankers and jobbers are lenient. But the business tie is ever the binding one in uniting localities, and it is silly to look for sentiment in such matters. To me all this ill nature seems in effect of unreasonable prejudice on the part of country people against city people, or, perhaps, in your special locality it is prompted by an imaginary conflict of interest between your Yaquina Bay railroad and the roads which terminate at Portland. But whatever its cause and whatever its motive, it seems to me that snub and insult are poor returns for political and business favors. And imposed as they are by a republican majority upon its own members it looks like pure ingratitude."

"You are correct enough," replied Mr. Wagner, "in your statements of fact. As regards the business matters you mention I have this to say, that if we are under obligations to Portland she is equally indebted to us. She has sat in the door of our commerce and has grown rich from our labor. She can well afford to be 'lenient', as you call it, for her wealth is a product of the country's toil, every dollar of it. The Willamette valley could get along without Portland much better than Portland could get along without the valley, and you are quite right in saying that there is no sentiment in business. We have not looked for it. As to any feeling of railroad rivalry on the part of our people, that is absurd. Our little road, as compared to the railroad system centering in Portland, is as a pigmy to a giant. The truth is that as a section we have no great grievance, and as republicans we are under strong bonds of sympathy. This hostility, which certainly exists here and which has root in the minds of all our people at home, springs from another cause and one which it is not easy to explain in a way to make it appear in proportion to its effect. Year after year and session after session we of the country have been treated by the Portland people and by the Multnomah delegation, as if we were a lower order of beings. At Salem here, the Portland members have proceeded upon the idea that they were made of a finer kind of clay than we are. The only legislation which has seemed worth attention to them has been that desired by Portland. They have acted toward us with haughty disregard of courtesy and very often, indeed, of common good manners. It is not possible to enumerate the thousand irritations which, together, form a great grievance, but we have suffered under them one at a time, and every man of us feels something of bitterness in his heart. We have not forgotten a thousand small indignities put upon us, nor have we forgotten that it was the insolent effrontery of Portland that thrust the great Mitchell disturbance upon us last year. We feel that we are just as intelligent and quite as good every way as the Multnomah people. We do not admit any natural or other inferiority, and we do not propose to be sat down upon or treated as poor boys at a frolic any longer. Our end of the country is just now showing its power, and we intend to show it whenever there is good cause for it. I must say that the present delegation, as a whole, shows better spirit than some former delegations have. If they are disposed to be part of the legislature in good nature and in harmony, they will find that in the end they will have cause to regard the valley people as friends, and the valley republicans as brethren.

LOCAL AND GENERAL.

SOMETHING WRONG SOMEWHERE.—The Jefferson street ferry slip, which has been improved by the city, is now in excellent repair, but the work has not yet been paid for. Undoubtedly the city, having authorized the improvement through its common council, will have to foot the bills, and it is likely to be an expense upon all the taxpayers. It was intended by the council when it passed the ordinance for the improvement, that it should be assessed to the adjacent property owners, but this will not be easy to do. Several have already given notice that they will resist such assessments and the courts have been invoked for restraining orders against the city. In view of Judge Smith's recent decision that assessments for street improvements cannot be made upon property to a greater amount than it is benefited, the city will find it hard work to collect anything from some of these property owners. With the exception of a plank sidewalk built on stilts along the south side of Jefferson street, between Front and Water, it can hardly be said that any part of the improvement is a benefit to the adjoining property. The Jefferson street ferry, however is very much benefited and to this company the improvement was absolutely necessary. That such an ordinance could have been passed by the city council, without even one member of that body opposing it in debate or by vote, or even inquiring or understanding in what the improvement consisted, seems very strange to a great many people. It is probable that not all the councilmen were cognizant of the nature of the improvement, but not being directly interested, no attention was paid to the matter. What the city most needs is not a new charter, but a majority of members in the common council, who, besides being honest themselves will be watchful of public interests and will prevent the imposing of heavy and unnecessary burdens upon the taxpayers.

TO BE HOVE DOWN.—The Cheesbrough was towed up to this city from Astoria by the Oklahama, arriving here yesterday morning, and is now moored at Coloma dock. She will in a few days be taken over to the east side and hove down for repairs. Four bids have been put in to the owners, by as many different contractors, to do the repairing, and they will be opened to-day. These bids were made, it is said, without any knowledge of how the vessel was injured, except that the leak was not great. John Holland was asked to bid, but declined to do so until he could examine the vessel. He will do so this morning, and the other bids will not be opened until he has had a chance. Captain Bosworth, who is acting for the owners, will have the letting of the contract, or may, if he sees fit, have the work done by the day

THE PROPOSED NEW CHARTER.—The new city charter as planned out, amended and adopted by the common council was being put in shape by a special committee last evening. This committee, consisting of Councilmen Adams, Sears, Forbes and Holland, have been appointed for the express purpose of going to Salem and urging upon the legislature this particular charter, which they desire the city to have. The other, and more complicated charter, which however is intended to work many needed reforms, as ratified by the board of trade, will also be presented and urged upon the legislature at about the same time by Hon H W Corbett.

DEATH OF CAPTAIN FAIRFOWL.—Yesterday morning Captain J. G. Fairfowl died at his residence, corner Nineteenth and G streets, after two months illness, aged 62 years and 6 months. His trouble was paralysis. He came to Portland about fifteen years ago, as second officer of the Oriflamme, and served in like capacity on other steamers of the North Pacific transportation company for several years. Of late years he had been engaged as stevedore in this city. Captain Fairfowl was a native of Philadelphia, and has lived on the coast since 1849. He leaves a wife and five children. The remains will be taken to San Francisco for burial.

COLUMBIA BAR IMPROVEMENT.—The following bids have been received and opened by the U. S engineer for the construction of four barges to be used in the work of improving the month of the Columbia river. Pacquet & Smith, $22,300, John F Steffen $21,400, Bulger & McKinnon, $34,732, John H Rutter, Astoria, $31,960. Also for the construction of wharf and trestle for improving the mouth of the Columbia river. Pacquet & Smith, $3495, N J Blagen & Co, $3680, Henry Hansen, Astoria $6120, Louis Holt, Astoria, $3490, Surprenant & Ferguson, Astoria, $3830. None of the contracts have yet been awarded

THE BAPTIST REVIVAL.—One week ago it was thought that the revival services at the Baptist church would conclude with the past week, but the attendance and interest have been so great that it would seem unwise to discontinue them, so they will be held every evening during the present week. Yesterday the congregations were unusually large and attentive, arguing well for the special services this week. At the close of the evening sermon the pastor baptized eight into the fellowship of the church. It is difficult to say when they will close. The meeting to-night will be a praise and converts' meeting

CRIMINAL ASSAULT ON A LITTLE GIRL.—John Barres, a man of whom no good is known, was on Saturday held to answer before the next grand jury, by Justice Redmond, to the charge of criminal assault, his victim, who completely identifies him, being a little girl, only 8 years of age, named Lucy Patterson. The prisoner was unable to furnish any bonds, and was committed to the county jail. His face is of the vicious type, and will not act in his favor in court. The police know him well, and say that he has already served one term in the penitentiary

SNOW IN THE INLAND EMPIRE.—Trains on the main line of the O. R & N are only detained very slightly by the snow fall, and the Pacific express is due to arrive here at 9 this morning. There is considerable snow on the Blue mountains, and trains on the Baker City branch are likely to be held several hours. The line was down east of Kamela (just beyond the summit of the Blue mountains) last night, hence news of the movement of trains could not be learned

BUILT FOR SPEED.—Captain U B Scott's new steamer, the Telephone, was towed up the river yesterday and tied up at the wharf at the foot of Washington. Upon first glance she strikes the observer as a boat that is capable of more than ordinary power and speed. She is quite narrow, considering her length, but her wheel is nearly as large as that of the R. R. Thompson or Wide West, with corresponding engines and machinery. The date of her trial trip has not yet been announced

WILL GRADUATE NEXT MONTH.—Graduating exercises of the Portland high school will be held in Masonic hall February 13. The following named pupils constitute the graduating class. Clyde A. Dunway, Daniel J Malarkey, Charles A. Strauss, Henry S. McGowan, Annie L Tilton, Annie E Knox, Julia I Copperthwaite, Mary J Peterson, Ida L Darker, Mary B Moore and Leona M Guild

THE TROUBLE WITH THE TELEPHONE CABLE.—The men dragging for the telephone cable have found that it was not broken, but simply pulled from its fastening on the west bank of the river and carried so far down the stream that it will have to be relaid from the east side. This cannot be done until a boom of logs which is now in the way has been towed off. The logs will probably be removed to-day, and the cable will then be taken up and relaid.

WANTS TO COMMUNICATE.—James S Volk, of 425 East Forty ninth street, New York city desires Doc Waldo of Waldo Hills, Marion county, to communicate with him to above address

A BORROWER'S PROTEST

LINN COUNTY, Jan. 14.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE OREGONIAN

As a borrower, and having a mortgage on my farm, I wish THE OREGONIAN to stick to the plan of letting the owners of property pay their own taxes on their land and not oblige them to expose their affairs and be stigmatized for paying no taxes when we have to pay from two to three per cent in extra interest. The law as it stands gives a golden harvest for brokers and shysters. THOMAS JONES, (a Granger.)

THIS WEEK'S AMUSEMENTS.

"ROSEDALE, OR THE RIFLE BALL"

Our citizens should not forget the benefit performances at the New Market theater this week by the popular Gresme Dares combination for the uniform fund of Company G. This is a good opportunity for friends of the company and others to aid a very worthy cause and at the same time witness the leading military drama of the day placed upon the stage on a grander scale than ever before attempted in this city. The fancy drills and bayonet exercises are of themselves worth going to see and the grand tableau in the fourth act, where Elliott Grey's soldiers come to his rescue, will be the finest stage picture ever seen here. A full orchestra will be present, uniformed members of the company will act as ushers, and many other attractions will be added. Each lady present at any of these performances will receive a handsome souvenir programme

THE CASINO

To-night and to-morrow night Von Suppe's charming opera, "Boccaccio," will receive final performances. It is produced specially for the benefit of those who could not go to see it during the storm

On Wednesday evening, for the first time in this city, Johann Strauss' "Prince Methusalem," with the following cast

Prince Methusalem	Jennie Winston
Princess Pulcinella (Sigismund's daughter)	Bessie Louise King
Sigismund duke of Trocadero	Arthur Bell
Cyprian duke of Bicarah	Marie Hagen
Trombonius a composer	Louis Dunnasch
Vollmund grand chamberlain	Frank Waters
Carbonazzi prime minister	Geo Wilkins
Zenterstein / Mandlebaum — Two ambassadors from Bicarah	Chas Marsh W C. Loveland
Sophistica wife of Cyprian	Eva Norman
Spadi a soldier	Louise Edgar

Following is a synopsis of the argument. Nowhere in particular lie the principalities of Trocadero and Bicarah, ruled respectively by the dukes Sigismund and Cyprian. Sigismund, whose army is small and finances ditto, desires to marry his daughter Pulcinella to Prince Methusalem, the son of the doughty Cyprian. The latter accordingly repairs, together with his wife and Pulcinella, to Sigismund's court for a double purpose, namely, to build up his shattered constitution and to bring the young people together. These love each other at first sight, and the marriage ceremony is performed. While the wedding festivities are in progress, announcement is made to Sigismund that a revolution has broken out in Bicarah and Cyprian dethroned. A symphony in honor of the wedded couple, composed by Trombonius, a young musician, was part of the festivities. On receipt of the news of the revolution Sigismund orders the festivities stopped. He forbids Methusalem to join his wife, but the prince steals past the sentries, and climbs to her window-sill, where they sing a charming love duet.

The second act opens in a street in Trocadero. It is late at night and Trombonius returning from the wedding with rage is captured by brigands. These, finding his pockets empty, join him in a conspiracy to overthrow Sigismund. The scene then changes to Sigismund's palace, where Cyprian, Sophistica and Methusalem, unaware of their misfortune, gaily partake of the morning meal. Sigismund's manner toward them is very overbearing, but he changes his tune when Cyprian receives a letter announcing the recovery of his youngest son from a sickness. He tells Cyprian the news of his dethronement, curtly refusing the latter any aid in quelling the insurrection. The arrival is announced of Mandlebaum and Fenerstein, deputies of the insurgents, who offer the crown of Bicarah to Sigismund, who accepts.

The third act opens with a gala day in the streets of Trocadero. Cyprian an Sophistica appear as organ-grinders, and amuse the populace with a song narrating their ill-fortune and showing up Sigismund's treachery. The various scenes of their sufferings are coarsely depicted on a canvas standard, which they carry. They are joined by Trombonius and his band, and invite the people to rebel against Sigismund. In the mean time Pulcinella gives Methusalem his certificate of generalissimo of the army of Trocadero, which Sigismund had withheld from him. Methusalem takes command and with the people's aid brings Sigismund to terms. Both dukes now abdicate leaving their countries as the joint domains of Methusalem and his charming wife

GUILTY OF MANSLAUGHTER

CHEHALIS, Jan 17.—The trial of Frank Reed for killing Frank Bernier in a saloon at Toledo last August began yesterday morning. The jury selected to try the case consisted of the following persons William West (foreman), S Sporenburg, Charles Joy, John Runyar, T. F Buchanan John Alexander, Joel Fay, George Mills, W Jones, James Yarlet, L. W Sanderson, Thomas Devereese

The witnesses examined for the prosecution were C Briggs C House J Loughron, Frank McNotty, John Lopez, Mrs. A Bernier, H Merz, Dr W Whitcomb. Witnesses on behalf of the defense were Frank Reed, the defendant, Charles Reed, Dr J S Herndon and Dr H R. Garner

The evidence for the prosecution seemed to show that deceased and defendant had quarreled over a ring belonging to the wife of the deceased, and that Reed, maddened with liquor, had secured a butcher knife and, after a further quarrel with Bernier, stabbed him in the arm, inflicting a wound that caused his death the next day

The defense endeavored to show that Bernier had assaulted Reed, the latter being a boy of 16, and the former a powerful man

The opening address was made by M Yoder, for the territory and then J C Haines addressed the jury in behalf of the defense, and was followed by W A Reynolds for the prosecution. Then came the charge to the jury by Judge Hoyt. The jury retired at 10 A M, and at 1 o'clock this morning came in and reported that they had found the defendant guilty as charged. Much interest was taken in the case, and the courtroom was filled with spectators during the progress of the trial

At 9 o clock this morning court was called, and the prisoner brought in to receive sentence. Judge Hoyt after considering the matter imposed a sentence of eighteen months in the penitentiary. His remarks to the prisoner were worthy the consideration of all present, and it is hoped will be of great benefit to the boy

COMMERCIAL.

SATURDAY, Jan 17.

[illegible] weather brought rain this afternoon. The [illegible] reports new snow at different points with the probability of it reaching a depth of several inches. The Columbia and Willamette rivers have been falling, and the [illegible] show [illegible].

Domestic receipts [illegible] sks [illegible] 10 sks [illegible] 10 bbls [illegible] 100 pkgs [illegible] 10 bbls [illegible] 14 [illegible] 60 pkgs tobacco [illegible].

PRODUCE RECEIPTS [illegible] 8 bbls flour 68 cts oats 97 ctls [illegible] 1030 sks potatoes 17 [illegible] lbs [illegible] hops 150 [illegible] fruit 19 pkgs butter [illegible] bbls [illegible]. Also [illegible] ctls wheat [illegible] barley 1601 ctls [illegible] hides from the eastern section.

IMPORTS—Per str Oregon include 10 [illegible] 141 [illegible] kegs 72 sks sugar 10 cs 2 kgs syrup [illegible] 3 cs of [illegible] mats [illegible] tea 1 bl 99 sks salt 304 sks [illegible] matches [illegible] 10 pkgs [illegible] 20 cs pearl barley 10 bxs [illegible] soda and sal [illegible] cs baking powder 36 cans [illegible] chocolate 11 pkgs spice 100 cs paste 4 cs candy [illegible] 1 kts [illegible] 250 bxs seed [illegible] 6 pkgs [illegible] dried fruit, 2 tcs lard [illegible] 6 [illegible] butter [illegible] 170 [illegible] coal oil [illegible].

FREIGHTS—[illegible] is still [illegible] from the [illegible] The market is quiet and [illegible] ships holding above the views of exporters who might be induced to take [illegible] at low rates. The difficulty in securing wheat operates against free business.

The receipts of wheat at this point since August 1 last have been [illegible] ctls [illegible] Walla Walla equal to 129 290 short tons. [illegible] receipts equal [illegible] tons. Exports of wheat [illegible] time have been [illegible] ctls foreign and [illegible] ctls domestic [illegible] 113 [illegible] tons, while flour exports were [illegible] bbls foreign and [illegible] bbls [illegible] 3 [illegible] tons foreign. The [illegible] have been [illegible] tons wheat and flour and domestic exports 19 641 tons a total of [illegible] tons. The average carrying capacity of vessels sailing between September 1 and January 1 [illegible] season was [illegible] short tons [illegible] capacity of vessels employed [illegible] by the [illegible] number of small ones at hand and [illegible] tons may be [illegible] average. At this average the 103 212 tons would require [illegible] vessels. It has actually required [illegible] will not direct reference to [illegible] which would make an average carrying [illegible] short tons. Having dispatched [illegible] vessels we have in port and listed [illegible] 4 vessels registering [illegible] average register of 1 4 tons against an average register of 1038 tons for those sailing prior to January, and about the same as against those cleared to date. This [illegible] loss of [illegible] tons register per vessel and of course a proportionate loss in capacity. Giving the 72 vessels in sight a capacity of 67 [illegible] tons, an average of 160 we have dispatched and in sight tonnage for 17[illegible] short tons. For the season of 1883-84 we shipped foreign a total of [illegible] short tons wheat and [illegible] actual weight employing ninety vessels a few of which number had salmon as part cargo. So we are apparently supplied with tonnage to carry 23 [illegible] tons more than was exported last cereal year. Opinions differ as to the probable surplus of the 1884 crop. Shippers have given out no estimates. Common report now agrees that not more than half of the valley crop has been marketed. Receipts have been from this section [illegible] tons wheat and a quantity of flour that would require [illegible] tons of wheat to manufacture. The receipts there equal [illegible] tons wheat. If it is admitted that not more than one-half the valley crop has found a market the crop must be placed at 141 118 tons. We have received from the eastern section [illegible] tons wheat and a quantity of flour requiring [illegible] tons of wheat to manufacture making a total receipt of 81 [illegible] tons wheat. The receipts from both sections represent [illegible] ctls wheat or [illegible] ctls less than the receipts of the whole 1883 crop. What there is yet to come from the eastern section is also a matter of opinion but if 50 000 tons must yet come out receipts here of 1884 crop will run up to 2[illegible] tons from both sections or [illegible] tons in excess of last year. If one fifth the receipts are exported domestic it will must appear to be a fair proportion we should on the above showing, export foreign 218 [illegible] tons. Having tonnage dispatched and in sight to carry [illegible] tons we need yet enough to carry [illegible] tons or about 28 vessels. In this estimate it will be seen that we have acknowledged the very highest crop estimates that have been put forth and we have presumed that the whole crop will be sold. Both these acknowledgments are, we know, open to violent criticism. In the first place crop estimates are almost always in excess of actual [illegible] experience proves, and again the hold over capabilities of the seller when prices do not suit him must not be forgotten. Four years ago the Oregon growers showed what they could do in this line and nearly 50 000 tons was so held over. If wheat values from now on show strength and an advancing tendency growers will hang back and less wheat will be sold than if values ruled low with no apparent future. In conclusion the above figures are given gratuitously and may be used as desired.

WHEAT—The markets telegraphed to-day are of the usual Saturday character. Locally only a fair amount of business is done and this at about last quotations. HOPS—A large consignment has gone east for London. The market is in slightly better tone and there are reports of new spot business. New York mail dates advance quotations one cent [illegible] to note an considerable improvement in the [illegible] business done.

SENATE BILLS

Synopsis of all the Bills Introduced in the Senate.

No 1—By Piven, prescribing methods for redeeming property sold by authority of court.

No 2—By [illegible], [illegible] pay bounties for wolf or coyote scalp.

No 3—By Hoult, providing for a constitutional convention at Salem to meet the first Monday in October, to be composed of [illegible] members [illegible] from the various counties identical with the present representation in the legislature, these delegates to be chosen at a special election the first Monday of next June. Membership of the legislature does not bar membership of the proposed convention. Delegates are to receive the same compensation as members of the legislature and to be paid from the state treasury in the same manner. This bill does not differ practically from that introduced in the house by Cox, excepting in the apportionment of members, Cox's bill providing that the vote cast at the last general election be the measure of apportionment. The population of the state is very differently divided now from the time of the apportionment under which members of the legislature are now elected, and the Cox bill will give much nearer equal and fair representation of the various sections of the state.

No 4—By Lee, dividing the state into three districts, with authority to maintain one normal school in each. The counties of Benton, Clackamas, Clatsop, Columbia, Lane, Linn, Marion, Multnomah, Polk, Tillamook, Washington and Yamhill, to compose district No 1. The counties of Coos, Curry, Douglas, Jackson, Josephine, Klamath and Lake, to compose No 2. The counties of Baker, Crook, Grant, Umatilla, Union and Wasco, shall compose district No 3. Students of either district may enter any normal school. The normal school for the first district to be located at Monmouth, in Polk county. Location for second and third districts yet to be fixed. The bill provides elaborately for the organization course of study and conduct of such schools.

No 5—By Reed, providing for equalization of taxes and for the appointment of state assessors in each county. It provides that the governor, secretary of state and state treasurer, shall fix the amount of state taxes to be paid by the various counties. On the first Monday of January, 1886, and every three years there after, the governor shall appoint an assessor for each county, whose pay shall be $6 per day for time of actual service. The bill elaborately sets forth rules for the making of assessments and its purpose is to distribute the burden of taxation more fairly than under the present law.

No 6—By Lee, to regulate the management of colleges of one or more religious bodies in the state. It provides elaborately for the election of trustees, but for what purpose is not apparent to one not familiar with the management of these schools. This bill should be explained more fully as to its application before it becomes a law.

No 7—By Lee, providing that only American citizens above 21 years of age shall be licensed as pilots on the Columbia and Willamette rivers. The pilot board is to regulate the number of pilots to be licensed. The bill repeals the present schedule of pilot charges, and presumable leaves its regulation to the pilot commission. It is declared that,

Inasmuch as the requirements of the present law have driven from the bar pilot grounds all Oregon pilots and substituted Washington territory pilots whose compensation is $2 per foot more than that of Oregon pilots, this act shall take effect upon its approval by the governor.

No. 8—By Warren, requiring practitioners of medicine and surgery to be graduates of chartered medical schools. The bill provides for a board of examiners, and in its various provisions, is almost identical with a similar measure introduced in the house, and fully described in house reports.

No. 9—By Rinehart, to prevent extortion and unjust discrimination in railroad charges. The bill is not definite in the matter of rates, its provisions in this respect being confined to expressions whose wild generalities would make conviction next to impossible. It provides penalties ranging from $1000 to $20,000.

No. 10—By Miller, to define the boundary line between Jackson and Josephine counties.

No. 11—By Miller, relieving Josephine county from the payment of taxes due the state in 1884. The county is poor and in debt, its taxable property is small and it has incurred heavy charges during the year in prosecuting criminal cases. The measure is apparently a just one of relief.

No 12—By Carson. This is identically the bankrupt bill of 1880, introduced by Simon, and originally designated as senate bill No 3.

No 13—By Reed, increasing the compensation of supreme judges to $2500 per year. The bill is identical with the measure introduced in the house for the same purpose.

No. 14—By Voorhees, prohibiting any transportation corporation formed under the laws of the state from owning stock in any other similar corporation formed under the same authority. Nor shall one transportation company be permitted to lease the transportation lines of any other corporation.

No 15—By Voorhees, to prevent the circulation of indecent literature and obscene pictures. It provides as penalties by imprisonment in the county jail not less than three months nor more than one year and by fine not less than $50 nor more than $100.

No 16—By Allen, to prevent bulls from running at large.

No 17—By Simon, providing for the registration of voters. This bill has been published in full in THE OREGONIAN.

No 18—By Coleman, for the registration of voters and to prevent frauds at elections. This bill is identical with the bill of the same title introduced at last session and originally designated senate bill No 9.

No 19—By Weatherford, to regulate warehousemen, wharfingers and other bailees. The effect of this bill is to make warehouse receipts legally negotiable.

No 20—By Weatherford, providing for prosecuting attorneys for each county.

No 21—By Shupe, giving the Smith river and Mill creek boom company the right to maintain a boom on Smith river and Mill creek in Douglas county.

No 22—By Coleman, providing that a diploma of the University of Oregon shall be equivalent to a certificate to teach.

No 23—By Simon, prescribing procedure in the administration of estates. This measure is identical with a bill of the same title introduced by Simon in 1880 and originally designated as senate bill No 78.

No. 24—By Hoult, making it unlawful in marking domestic animals on the ear to cut or remove more than one-half of the ear. For violation fines are provided, not less than $5 nor more than $100.

No 25—By Barb, providing that any citizen a holder of taxable property within the district shall be entitled to vote at school elections.

No 26—By Haines, fixing the legal rate of interest at 8 per cent, with permission to contract at any other rate.

No 27—By Haines, definitely fixing the classifications of property as to "real property" and "land," and prescribing rules for assessments.

No 28—By Cartwright, creating the county of Wiltman from the northeast part of Wasco county.

No [illegible]—By Hoult, for the punishment of tramps, providing that they be fined not less than $5 nor more than $50, and to be sentenced to hard labor till the fine and costs are paid by labor at the rate of $2 per day.

No [illegible]—By Simon, prohibiting the examining [illegible] as witnesses of small children.

No 31—By Biven, to establish a uniform course of public instruction in the common schools.

No [illegible]—By Biven, prescribing procedure in the service of summons.

No 33—By Davenport, providing for the election of assessors by each precinct, and allowing such assessors $3 per day for actual service. The bill provides elaborately the procedure and methods of making assessments.

No 34—By Davenport, requiring an annual license of $500 for the right to sell liquor.

No 35—By Prim, incorporating the town of Ashland, prescribing a complete and elaborate scheme of government.

No. 36—By Prim, incorporating the town of Linkville.

No 37—By Prim, prescribing procedure in equity suits.

No 38—By Prim, defining the nature of grand juries and prescribing the methods of their selection and their duties.

No [illegible]—By Simon, to secure liens for mechanics, laborers and material men. This bill is designed to give precedence to this class of claims and is identical with a similar measure introduced in the house by Bourne.

No 40—By Hoult, to prevent extortion and unjust discrimination in railroad charges. This bill like S B No 9, introduced by Rinehart is [illegible] in that it contains no schedule for passenger or freight charges.

No 41—By Lee, providing for the purchase of land and the erection of substantial brick buildings for the blind and deaf mutes of the state. The site must be within two and one-half miles of Salem. The bill appropriates $25,000 for land and building.

No 42—By Miller, to create a board of railroad commissioners. It provides that on the last day of the present session the legislature shall assemble in joint convention and elect three commissioners, to hold office for two years. One commissioner must be a republican, one a democrat and one shall be experienced in railroad business. One member shall be a competent lawyer. The governor is authorized to fill vacancies in board. No person having any pecuniary interest in any railroad line of the state shall be a commissioner or have any office in connection with the board. [illegible] shall have general supervision of all railroads in the state. They shall examine the manner in which they are operated with reference to the economic working of the public and their compliance with the laws of the state. Railroad companies are required to furnish the board with complete statement of their affairs. [illegible] to be withheld under severe penalty [illegible] commissioners are not required to [illegible] such information. The commissioners are given the authority to fix rates of passenger and freight charges, and there is no appeal from their authority. The commissioners shall be paid an annual salary of $2100, [illegible] an annual salary of $1800.

No 43—By Hirsch, providing that in all cases in court where the attorney fee is not allowed to the prevailing party in accordance with an express contract there may be allowed in the decree indemnity to the prevailing party for his attorney fee in maintaining the action. [illegible] purpose of this bill is to do away with [illegible] growing out of improper contracts for the payment of attorneys' fees made by the givers of notes.

No. 44—By Warren, giving authority to [illegible] the county seat of Yamhill county, and providing for special election upon the question of relocation, to be held on the first Saturday of November next. This measure is in the interest of McMinnville, which has long desired the advantages now accruing to Lafayette as the seat of county government.

No 45—By Pennington, to create Morrow county after the plan of the bill introduced in the house by Cox, and heretofore described in the house reports. Mr Pennington asked that the bill, contrary to rule, be not printed, explaining that it related entirely to a special local ity and it was so ordered.

No 46—By Shupe, prescribing that the terms of the circuit court in the counties of the second judicial district, shall be held hereafter as follows: In Douglas, beginning on the third Monday of October and the first Monday in May. In Curry, beginning on the second Monday in June. In Coos, on the fourth Monday in May and the the third Monday in September. In Lane, on the third Monday in April and the first Monday in November.

In Benton on the fourth Monday in March and the third Monday in November. As the present time for holding circuit court in Douglas county is inconvenient and unnecessarily expensive it is provided that the measure take effect upon its approval by the governor.

No. 47—By Loris, providing that hop boxes shall be 36 inches long and 20 inches deep.

No 48—By Simon, declaring the following days to be legal holidays: every Sunday, the first day of January, the 22d day of February, the 30th day of May, the 25th day of December, and every day of general election and every day appointed by the president or the governor. Negotiable instruments payable on a holiday become due the next business day.

No 49—By Simon, providing that on all bills of exchange, promissory notes, etc., payable at some future day certain, grace shall be allowed as it is allowed by the custom of merchants on foreign bills of exchange.
